

New Freeway System Deemed 'Most Ambitious'

By Senator Richard Richards
The new freeway system, launched with the enactment of legislation now approved by the governor, is the most ambitious and far-reaching program ever developed by a state.

It provides for the construction over the next 20 years of a vast 12,000-mile statewide freeway network at an estimated cost of $10.5 billion.

THE FREEWAYS, which eventually will link all cities in the state with a population of $5,000 and over, will be built in cooperation with the federal highway construction program.

Prior to the drafting of the legislation, a joint committee of the Legislature, of which I am a member, held hearings throughout the state on local aspects of the program upon which I reported at the time.

FINDINGS of this committee were coordinated with the two-year study by the State Division of Highways. Also assisting in the study was a 14-member committee made up of city and county officials and representatives of the Automotive Safety Foundation and the University of California.

The resulting legislation was endorsed by the League of California Cities, the California State Automobile Association and the Automobile Association of Southern California.

The program was also singled out for high praise by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in Washington when the plans were submitted for coordination with the federal system.

ESTIMATES have been made that safety features inherent in the latest type of construction would reduce traffic accidents and fatalities by as much as two-thirds.

It is also estimated that savings on driver costs on a point-to-point basis would amount to as much as $26 billion over a 20-year period, or approximately two and a half times the capital investment involved.

IN BROAD terms, what the measure does is to establish the California freeway and expressway system and add to the state highway system those portions which are already designated as state highway routes.

Under provisions of the bill, the Department of Public Works is required to report back to the Legislature no later than the 1963 session, and every four years thereafter.

BRAIN MATTER
CLEVELAND — Average brain of an adult man weighs approximately three pounds.

after as to the progress being made in the development of the program.

IT HAS been noted that by 1980, although the new freeway system will comprise only 11 per cent of the public roads in the state, it will be carrying more traffic than all of the other roads combined.

Our own county will benefit very substantially in the development of the freeways already projected or under actual construction in this area.
